

Emma Perez, M.S., CGC, is a genetic counselor and project manager in the Personalized Medicine department at Brigham and Women's Hospital. She manages the Mass General Brigham eMERGE project site and is focused on return of polygenic risk scores to patients and their primary care providers. She oversees participant and provider education, clinical decision support, recruitment and sample operations, electronic health record integration, return of results, and outcomes analyses. Additionally, she returns secondary findings to participants enrolled in the Mass General Brigham Biobank and is passionate about preventive medicine.