

NUTRITION RESEARCH
National Institute of Diabetes & Digestive & Kidney Diseases (NIDDK)
National Institutes of Health (NIH)
Department of Health and Human Services

The NIDDK at the NIH is seeking an exceptional Science Administrator to serve in a dual senior leadership and program management role as the Director, Office of Nutrition Research, and Chief, Nutrition Research Branch. In the role of Director, Office of Nutrition Research, the incumbent will be responsible for leadership of nutrition research in NIDDK and collaboratively, across NIH institutes. The incumbent will participate in strategic planning, portfolio analysis, budget and resource allocation, and assessment of research needs and opportunities that fall within the mission of NIDDK and the NIH. Strategic planning will include developing new Trans NIH research initiatives in nutrition research. The incumbent will be expected to develop extensive partnerships both within other Federal agencies and with private industry. Nutrition research at NIH comprises a portfolio of approximately $1.4 billion of research support related to the nutritional sciences, for which the largest component is attributable to research funded by NIDDK. In the role of Chief, Nutrition Research Branch, the incumbent serves as a member of the senior leadership team of NIDDK. The incumbent will lead and coordinate nutrition research in NIDDK. In this role, the incumbent will directly manage and supervise complex programs in nutrition research, and participate in the development of new funding initiatives. Additionally, the incumbent will provide expert advice and guidance to other offices in NIDDK responsible for reporting scientific accomplishments and plans of the NIDDK to public policy makers, and which lead multiple educational and public awareness activities.

QUALIFICATIONS REQUIRED:

Candidates should possess a doctoral degree or equivalent training, and substantial leadership experience in managing basic, translational and clinical nutrition research programs.
