

Anne Ferguson-Smith is Professor of Developmental Genetics at the University of Cambridge. She studies genomic imprinting, the epigenetic control of genome function and developmental programming. Her integrated programme of research explores epigenetic processes in mammalian development, physiology and disease predominantly in mouse models.

<http://www.pdn.cam.ac.uk/staff/ferguson/>